We can easily see the Hoosiers escaping the basement this year as last season's squad had 4 tough losses. They could easily have beaten Mich St, N'western, Illinois and Penn St had one or two plays gone differently in each game and this could have been a 7-4 team. They have a new head coach and should get off to a fine start, probably sweeping the non-conf games, giving them a ton of confidence for the Big 10 season. Unfortunately, they're in a rebuilding year with just 13 starters back while losing 21 lettermen. They do have a lot of ground to make up in Big 10 play as they were outgained by 119.8 ypg last year. Despite the early season success, it will likely be another rebuilding season.
